

EDDIE GARCIA

Eddie Garcia is an accomplished director, choreographer, dancer and multi-faceted entertainer with a solid reputation for choreography built upon decades of performing alongside many of today's most celebrated stars.

At just 16 years old, Eddie's incredible dancing style and technique delivered him to the world stage via many projects with Janet Jackson. He danced in some of her most iconic videos and performances of all time, including "Nasty", "What Have You Done For Me Lately", "When I Think of You" and the classic "Control" on the American Music Awards.

By the time Eddie turned 17, "The King of Pop" himself, Michael Jackson, hand picked Eddie to join him. This began with "Smooth Criminal", still considered one of the greatest videos of all time, and continued with other well videos like "The Way You Make Me Feel" and "Speed Demon". Eddie spent the next five years dancing with Jackson on the record- breaking and internationally acclaimed "Bad" and "Dangerous" Tours.

It was during those invaluable years of touring and working on countless sets that Eddie fine-tuned his innate ability to direct, produce and choreograph. He has since lent his talent to collaborations with well known artists such as Jennifer Lopez, Paula Abdul, Queen Latifah, Jane's Addiction and many others.

Eddie Garcia's artistic fingerprint has made him one of the most sought after names within the world of dance and choreography. He continues to enjoy engaging in new creative adventures and collaborations with the artists of today and tomorrow.
