

Phil Vicars

To get started dancing, Phil Vicars didn't need much. Persuaded by a twenty dollar bill and multiple trips to McDonald's at the age of seven, he took his first dance class and has never looked back.

After performing with LA's Spark Kids and Marguerite Derrick's Generation Next in high school, he decided to pursue dance as a career. Following through, he graduated from the University of California, Irvine with a B.F.A. in Dance where he was able to train with some of the dance world's most talented instructors and spent time as a company member of Donald McKayle's Etude Ensemble.

Since then, Phil has performed for Disney, Universal and in Donny & Marie Las Vegas. He motion captured and was featured in the Black Eyed Peas Experience video game, performed with the Radio City Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall for numerous seasons, and danced in a number of television spots, music videos and industrials.

Phil currently resides in Los Angeles where he continues to perform. He also teaches master classes in tap, musical theater and jazz across the country and is a Director for Spotlight Dance Cup.
